The designs I created are transparent so that they could be printed onto 80gsm coloured paper. From the "aged" texture of the board, to the creative property and event names, to its uncanny resemblance to the original Monopoly game, Robbie has done a truly outstanding job in mixing two great classics into one fantastic board game. Anyway, with that in mind I decided to try to make my own one. I searched high and low for the game to buy only to discover that Hasbro had never actually made one. So I made one! I spent 80+ hours on the board layout, the cards, and all the extra details. Author: Taste of Home Perfect Pot Roast Feed your family with Ree Drummond's Perfect Pot Roast recipe from Food Network. (BTW I'm releasing my designs for free, so if you're interested in making this exact board, you can download the cards and board HERE!) I started with a blank monopoly board template printed on an A4 sheet of paper. This easy white bread recipe... This is where I came up with the idea that the Chocolate Frog cards will affect the properties and their rent - so now if you land on a property that has a Chocolate Frog card assigned to it, there will be a specific set of instructions/rules to follow (e.g. pay triple the rent, pay no rent but skip a go, etc). Without giving up, I went to my local Staples and got them to print all of my cards for me on my own paper (ended up being 19 A4 sheets) which I then took home and glued the backs and fronts together. I'm so happy with the final product though!Starting with the final product: board and all the piecesMirror image print - creating the board layout was difficult, but also fun to create my own properties!Lay out a layer of polycrylic, lay down the paper, allow to dry, and rub away the paper. Author: Betty Crocker Kitchens Although many people will tell you that Monopoly should come with a warning label that reads "may cause family feud," MuggleNet completely endorses this version of the classic board game we all know and love. "Potions" are Chance and printed on thick orange paper. I used this as a rough work sheet and wrote down which "properties" I was going to assign to which spaces. Apple Crisp Perfect and Easy I adapted this from a 50-year-old peach crisp recipe. For the houses and hotels, I wanted something a bit more "Harry Potter-ry". For those of you who haven't yet seen this gem, behold - Harry Potter Monopoly! Everything is perfectly done. I printed them off on two sides of the same sheet of thicker paper, then covered both sides with Mod Podge to try to thicken it up more and also protect it. I initially tried to print these on my printer at home but for some reason nothing was co-operating and the toner just wouldn't adhere to the glossy paper. I struggled to come up with a somewhat reasonable "manor shape" because the clay was being completely unreasonable, so I settled on a triangular-tent-like shape which looks nothing like a manor! (perhaps you guys might be more successful!). Although it works well with peaches, it works even... When it came to printing the cards, money, and board I went to my local craft shop where I picked up a few different coloured 80gsm sheets of paper (for the money), 2x A2 thick craft boards (for the game board), a stack of A4 glossy white 180gsm paper (for the cards), and a few other supplies such as clear gloss varnish spray, a rotary cutter, and spray adhesive. You have to line up the edge and then evenly press in the fold, with particular care in the fold. Author: Ina Garten Home Style Meatloaf When it's comfort that you seek, nothing satisfies quite like a classic meatloaf. Author: Janet Caldwell Best Chocolate Chip Cookies Crisp edges, chewy middles. Other nerdy things he enjoys are Star Wars and Legos. Author: Taste of Home The Best Canning Salsa This is a great use for tomatoes from the garden and nothing tastes better than homemade. The board has to be printed on larger paper, and even then you have to print two halves. This left me with 3 extra tiles to come up with uses for (e.g. apparatus to knight bus free parking, house cup victory, etc). Author: Diane Kester Easy Meatloaf This is a very easy and no fail recipe for meatloaf. I just Mod Podge'd it onto a Monopoly board that came in the cheapest set I could find. I only added 1 Chocolate Frog square to the board so that they would be picked up less frequently (and cause less arguments!). It won't take long to make at all, and it's quite... Enjoy! Author: cookingmama Easy Coleslaw Dressing A creamy coleslaw dressing that can be made with ingredients you already have! You can pour it immediately... This could take a few tries to get right so I would suggest printing the board a few times just to ensure that you like how it looks (I ended up going for the edge-to-edge look which were 26cmx26cm squares). Both are standard US Letter size. I put a lot of work and effort into designing this game and board, so please give credit where credit is due and DO NOT SELL. Gold spray paint on some wood dividers completed it. But, this was one of my first experiences with Mod Podge, so maybe it'll be a lot easier for Mod Podge experts out there. That was the trickiest part of the entire operation. I finished the board by spraying it with a 2 light layers of clear gloss varnish (wait until the first layer dries before spraying it again) which gives the paper a nice finish and makes it more durable. Author: UNIVSTUDENT Perfect Roast Chicken For the perfect roast chicken dinner every time, try this popular recipe from Ina Garten, Food Network's... (I actually ended up changing this slightly later on because I added a new card to the game so the board changed from having 10 spaces on each side to having 11). The printable is designed to print front/back on a single sheet of paper, but you can just glue the two sides together. If you're just here for the printable files, you can find them here. Author: dakota kelly Best Hamburger Ever These burgers are the best on the grill in the summertime. I once again designed the cards in Photoshop and kept to the "old parchment" look which I felt fit the theme I was going for. P.S. I took all of the pictures when I was drunk and broke my camera - (I suggest doing this step either outside or in a well-ventilated area because I almost died from the fumes in my little studio apartment! For the game tokens, I bought 2 old second-hand Harry Potter Scene-It games from Ebay for cheap. If what I said doesn't make sense, then hopefully the crappy Microsoft paint image I made below explains it better! I printed the four corners of the board onto normal A3 paper and then cut them into 25.4cm squares. And if you don't have... Same process with the property cards, with some added Mod Podge for protection. I also added the rules for this new card to the rule book that I later made. Once deciding which properties were going to be which colour, I got down to actually designing them on Photoshop. These ended up being perfect and exactly what I needed. The two halves should line up with the split in the board. Finally the box can be printed on two sheets of 17x22, one for the top, one for the bottom. The "Potions" and "Chance" cards are printed on thick orange paper, standard US letter size. For the thick board, I cut 4 26cm x 26cm squares. Each corner tile measured 2.5"x2.5" whilst all of the others measured 1.5"x2.5" (this makes a 20"x20" square game board. I had a few failed starts (stupid me trying to design the cards in Microsoft Word) but once Tom set me on the right track with Photoshop, I was on my way! This was my first ever time using Photoshop so it was a bit of a challenge, but a fun challenge nonetheless. Author: JoAnn Hague Apple Crisp II A simple dessert that's great served with ice cream. I wrote this in Microsoft Word and pretty much just used the original Monopoly rules, except for changing the words to their corresponding Harry Potter themed words (House > Manor, Jail > Azkaban, etc) and adding my custom rules for the my Chocolate Frog cards. As far as projects go, this one definitely had it's bumps in the road along the way, but I enjoyed making it nonetheless and I can't wait to have hours of fun (and arguments) with it! If you fancy making it yourself, I've made my files accessible HERE! for free download. I would have loved to include the Sickness and Knuts but thought that it would be more effort than it was worth and pretty impractical to have to lots of fake coins that would get easily lost. I then flipped all of the attached squares over and duct taped 2 of the opposite squares to each other. It leaves the ink behind!Finished the rubbing with some woodburned edgesAdding the center image and burning the card spacesAn (incomplete) photo of the properties - front and backRailroads turned to Transportation Methods of the Wizard Community and I turned utilities to newspapers!Charms=Chance, Potions=Community Chess used Disney Monopoly pieces and a little spray paint for the houses/hotels!Instead of paper money, I used the Wizard coins of knuts, sickles, and galleons; but with my own variation. I came up with the idea of manors and castles and bought some fino clay from Ebay. For those looking to make their own, the printable files can be downloaded here. Please note that these are for personal use only and may not be redistributed or sold. Judging from the weathered look of this... I first designed the fronts of the property cards, and then the backs (with their mortgaged values) separately. To make his spell cards (these are the "Community Chest" cards in the original), Robbie notes that he prints them on thick yellow paper to emulate the original Monopoly. Due to how large the board is, he needed to print the paper in two halves on 17 x 22 paper. Finally, the rule book. I then glued each printed square carefully onto its respective cardboard square making sure that everything lined up perfectly (use the inner corners of the board as your guide rather than the outer corner as there will be a small perimetre surrounding your board once it's glued down). All of the property cards are also designed to print front/back on a single sheet of paper, you just have to figure out which way to rotate the paper to get it to work. This recipe pairs nicely with my macaroni salad recipe! Author: Tracey Cordie The Best Pizza Dough This easy pizza dough recipe is the key to making an extraordinary homemade pizza. He then took Mod Podge and stuck it onto an original Monopoly board and lined the two halves up. They've made every kind of monopoly under the sun...but not a Harry Potter one. I changed the values to simply 10, 50, and 100 values instead! bought a poker case to hold the money and the cards, tokens, and pieces! printed out Monopoly Rules (slight HP Variation of course) for the top. Despite how many times I tried, I couldn't get the backs and fronts of the cards to line up exactly when printing so after about a trees worth of paper, I decided to just print the backs and front of the cards on separate sheets, glue them together and then cut them out with my rotary blade (which actually turned out to be a lot better than I expected - the cards were very sturdy having 2x 180gsm sheets glued together). I knew I wanted to add my own spin to the game but was unsure how. To make the actual board, Robbie printed out his design on large paper. I researched loads of other peoples homemade Harry Potter Monopoly games before starting and drew inspiration from a lot of those designs. It's a lot of files, and they probably require some description. (I forgot to include pictures of how the fronts of the cards look - sorry! They're available to download though). Luckily, the Harry Potter world has it's own currency - gold Galleons, silver Sickles, and bronze Knuts. Their sole purpose being - to cause more arguments! Having played classic Monopoly plenty of times, I thought that the properties and their assigned rent values were a bit boring and plain - you land on a property and you pay the rent - simple, but ultimately boring after a 3 hour game. What are you doing Hasbro? JUST DON'T SELL IT. Or you can just glue the two sides together. Once again, I did this with Photoshop (I was beginning to get the hang of it at this stage, and dare I say it - somewhat good?). Author: Betty Crocker Kitchens Good Old Fashioned Pancakes This is a great recipe that I found in my Grandma's recipe book. Author: SweetCravings Ultimate Chocolate Chip Cookies We named this recipe "Ultimate Chocolate Chip Cookies," because it's got everything a cookie connoisseur... Author: GarlicQueen Grandma's Baked Beans My mother has made these beans for years. This is when I thought of the Chocolate Frog trading cards that they have in the films and decided that I wanted to incorporate them into the game somehow. I then popped the clay pieces into the oven for about 30 minutes at a temperature of 110°C and let them cool down. I was contemplating making my own tokens but whatever I would have produced wouldn't have had the same professional quality and feel that I wanted (Yes, I'm a perfectionist). We use all-purpose... Author: Dora Basic Homemade Bread If you'd like to learn how to bake bread, here's a wonderful place to start. My friend really wanted a Harry Potter monopoly board - but sadly they do not exist. He currently lives in Utah with his wife and daughter, teaching middle school computer classes. Thanks to Robbie for this amazingly creative project! Be sure to check out our other DIY features and project tutorials on our main Potter DIY page! The images below are just previews of what I'm talking about. "Spells" are Community Chest cards and I just printed them on thick yellow paper (because that's the old school Monopoly design). I attached 2 of the squares together with duct tape and repeated with the other 2 squares (this allows the boards to fold). With the addition of the Chocolate Frog card, I had to add a new tile to each side of the board. The paper is 17x22. With hundreds of comments on his Potter project, many of which contain messages of desperation, begging, and offers as high as $150 to purchase, Robbie from Colletcreative has created something truly ingenious that has contributed in amazing ways to the Potter community. Jam-packed with all kinds of stuff, and no... Author: Ree Drummond : Food Network The Best Steak Marinade We use this marinade for rib steaks, but can be used for almost any cut of beef. Cut along the black outer edge, and cut exactly on the white edge. With the cards, money, and game pieces made, it was time to design the actual game board. Instead of having community chest cards and chance cards, I changed them to Ministry cards and Hallows cards. I had to make 32 manors and 12 castles out of the clay which I did whilst watching Netflix on the couch with Tom. Robbie even created a box for his custom Potter Monopoly game! Check it out below: Although it took many efforts to get Robbie to read Harry Potter, he finally gave in and unsurprisingly, became a big fan. With that in mind, I decided to use Galleons but in "note-form".
