Photo of Caroline Lima photography There are so many places to get married in Georgia. From the places of the Atlanta hip to the historic houses of Savannah to the Blue Ridge Mountains, there is something for everyone. Another advantage of getting married in Georgia: the marriage licenses are convenient (one costs $ 56 plus taxes ($ 20), and you can the fee by taking a pre-marital class.) However, it may require a bit of planning. You and your partner both need to appear in person (often on a date set by the courts) at a specific office to get your license. To help navigate the process, we turned to expert Melinda Guess. He gave us Step by step guide to get a marriage license in Georgia and pitfalls to look out. The idea is to make this process as easy as possible so you can get to a fun part: get married! Meet the expert Melinda Guess is a professional marriage officiant in Atlanta. If one or both people who get married are residents in Georgia, the process is a bit easier. You can request a marriage license in any county in Georgia, regardless of where your wedding takes place. However, if none of you is a resident in Georgia (maybe you are having a destination marriage?) You must request the marriage license in the county where your ceremony is in progress. Every county has its own procedures to ensure a marriage license. In Fulton County, for example, where Atlanta is, you can apply to one of the three courts of succession. They are all open from 8:30 to 16:00, and the walk-in are welcome (even if you can wait). In Chatham County, where it is Savannah, you can request a marriage license via e-mail or by putting a question in a delivery box within the Court of Succession (do this with time to save, because they will come Then schedule an appointment to meet in person). In Clayton County, a more rural part of the state, you need to request an online marriage license before making an appointment in the person needed to sign the modules. The good news is that there is no waiting period in Georgia, which means that you can marry as soon as you get the marriage license. They have no expiration date, so you can get a very early license of your parties. à € œWhe states of Georgia marriage licenses do not expire, so I encourage my couples to go as soon as possible to check it out of the list, à € says Guess. à € œ Some tribunals of succession of Georgia have changed in a process of only appointment, and are months out with appointments. The metro counties that have the Walk-in typically have long lines and waiting time, up to two hours. So it's better to do it on a day when you have planned anything à € and while all marriage licenses are released the same day that applies, the marriage certificate process could also take a bit of perseverance, share Guess. After the ceremony, the officer will sign the marriage license and submit it to the Court. Then, the court will send the couple their marriage certificate, which declares them legally married. For Guess, this process can take up to 30 days. à You will say only to couples to have patience and follow with the salesman if they have not received their marriage certificate within 30 days, he adds him. There are some elements you will have to get a marriage license Georgia. Take them to your appointment in person. Proof of age. You must be 18 years old to get married in Georgia, and you must have proof of your age. The following documents will do the trick: birth certificate, driver's license, baptism certificate, passport, immigration documents, hospital admission card with full name and date of birth, birth, divorce, you need to enter the divorce date on the application. If a divorce has been granted 30 days or less since you are requesting for your license, you will need a copy of the divorce decree. "One of the biggest mistakes couples make when applying for a marriage license is not bringing their divorce decree with them," said guess. money. Wedding licenses cost about $56 in Georgia, you can pay in cash (but not bills bigger than $20,) the order of money, or credit card, to reduce the price to $16 you can complete a premarital educational program approved by the state. His marriage license is not a marriage proof or a legal document that shows you to be married; rather, it is a license that gives you permission to marry. Your officiant will examine your marriage license before your ceremony and then finish it after it is over. should be returned to the inheritance court within 30 days. Many couples see to ensure their marriage license as another task they have to complete before their marriage, says guess what: "To get the marriage license is not typically an important occasion, just more than one task controlled by the list." But this does not mean that you can't make it special if you want. when it arrives in the mail, or you go home with it after an appointment, open a bottle of your favorite wine or make a special meal. Remember, this is your first step to become legally a married couple. we celebrated after completing less worthy tasks. homework.
